

Ahoy Sleeper Sofa – how to open it into a bed and close it back into a sofa

The right/chaise side of the sofa has a storage box that holds sheets, blankets and pillows. Lift up the bottom end of the chaise cushion to get to the storage box. There's also an inflatable air mattress in there in case you want to put that on top of the sleeper mattress for a more cushioned sleep.

To open up the sleep sofa and create the full-size sleep surface, pull on the straps that are on the long front side and pull. Once the trundle pulls forward, grasp the long front bottom edge of the sofa and roll the whole trundle box straight out toward you (right).

Grab the straps on the trundle mattress and tilt the mattress up and out of the trundle box. You may need to grab the back of the trundle mattress to help it pop up. It will settle on top of the trundle box and the whole bed will flatten into a full-size sleep surface area (below).

Remove the cushions from the back of the sofa to create a large, full-size sleep area. Add inflatable air mattress if you want, or just cover the sleep sofa with the waterproof mattress protector and the flat sheet stored inside the chaise storage container. Add pillows and comforters and/or blankets as desired.

To close up the bed and turn it back into a sofa, pull the tabs on the trundle section up and settle the trundle mattress back into its box. Push the trundle box back under the sofa. Replace the back sofa cushions.
